ABOUT ME

I'm a committed learner having spent 6 months of evening and weekends studying and retraining alongside my full time job at the highly regarded Le Wagon bootcamp in London. I'm looking forward to transferring the skills I have learned in my current and previous roles and pairing them with those I've learned over the last few months in an engineering role.

I'm currently a Regional Business Manager for Subway London, with 10+ years of management experience in the hospitality sector at many levels and companies, all including heading major system changes from scheduling, recruitment and training to rolling out major regional initiatives such as third-party delivery most recently.
